

Elfab Student Accounts

Elfab is committed to supporting Engineering Learning and offers a 'Student Account' which has special privileges normally reserved for professional Engineers such as full access to the range of site Panel and Disc calculators that are used by customers to support their commercial decisions.

A person registering for a student account should be a registered student at University or college level with a legitimate interest in Elfab and its products. As such, you should use your university/academic email address as a registration address which will be checked by Elfab at the time of registration. If your university does not offer an institutional email address, you should contact Elfab directly.

You must not continue to use a student account created in association with a company with which you were on placement that permitted you to access the Elfab company area for that company once you complete that placement. Unauthorised access of privileged commercial information may be considered a criminal offence in most jurisdictions. You should remove any company references from your account once it is appropriate to do so through the 'Manage Companies' link of your account or advise Elfab who will do so on your behalf.

On completion of your studies, you should advise Elfab so that your account status can be adjusted accordingly.

Abuse of student status, e.g. impersonating or pretending to be a student, attempting to access company information as a competitor, will lead to cancelling of the account and any other actions considered appropriate by Elfab or its partners.
